

Bachelor of Science

Public Health

The Public Health program prepares students to become leaders in the health profession through education, promotion, and prevention. Pursue a degree that helps people and communities adopt healthy behaviors by studying in an environment that reaches beyond course work and class discussions. We also offer this discipline as a minor, where students are able to select from a diverse offering of electives across multiple academic colleges. Students have an opportunity to choose a concentration in Health Promotion and Education that both emphasize prevention and providing individuals with the knowledge, tools, and motivation to make positive health decisions.

Be EXPERIENCED

We know that education is not always found in the classroom. Build a professional network and impact the health education industry through internships with local and national non-profits, health organizations, and government agencies that will complement your course work and career aspirations. Recent internship sites include:

- American Health Association
- Hamilton County Public Health
- Tri-Health
- Proctor and Gamble

#3 among the nation's elite institutions for co-op and internships (US News & World Report 2020)

Be INVESTED

Invest in yourself and your career. Before you graduate, you will build a resume that sets you apart, make connections that can help lead to job offers, learn what you like most about your field, and gain the confidence only experience provides. Work in a variety of settings, including:

- Corporate Wellness
- Hospitals
- Government Agencies
- Nonprofit Organizations
- Health Departments
- Schools and Universities

All students are eligible to sit for the Certified Health Education Specialist (CHES) exam upon completion of the program.

$60,900 average earnings for entry level college graduates (US Bureau of Labor Statistics, 2019)

5.78% Increase in demand in employment for this field over the next 10 years (US Bureau of Labor Statistics, 2019)

YOU

We offer over 400 student organizations and clubs that support a variety of interests. You're certain to find your niche. The Health Promotion and Education program offers the following opportunities:

- Eta Sigma Gamma (Honor Society)
